*Welcome
Home, Cornhuskers!*

Homecoming at Nebraska is a wonderful occasion and on behalf of the University, let me say that we are very glad you could be with us today.

It is significant, I think, that when we say, "Welcome home, Cornhuskers!" the greeting applies not only to those of you who are Alumni and former students, but also to every Nebraskan. Perhaps in no other state do citizens feel as close to their University and its team as do Nebraskans. We at the University are very proud of that. It is a healthy sign, we think, when all the people of the state respond to the salutation of, "Welcome, Cornhuskers!" We like to feel that your interest in the Cornhusker team is an indication of your interest in our whole program of collegiate life and higher education.

Have a good time today. I am sure that any meeting of teams from Colorado and Nebraska means a spirited contest to which memory will cling. Certainly, we could have no finer neighbors here to share our Homecoming than our good friends from Colorado.

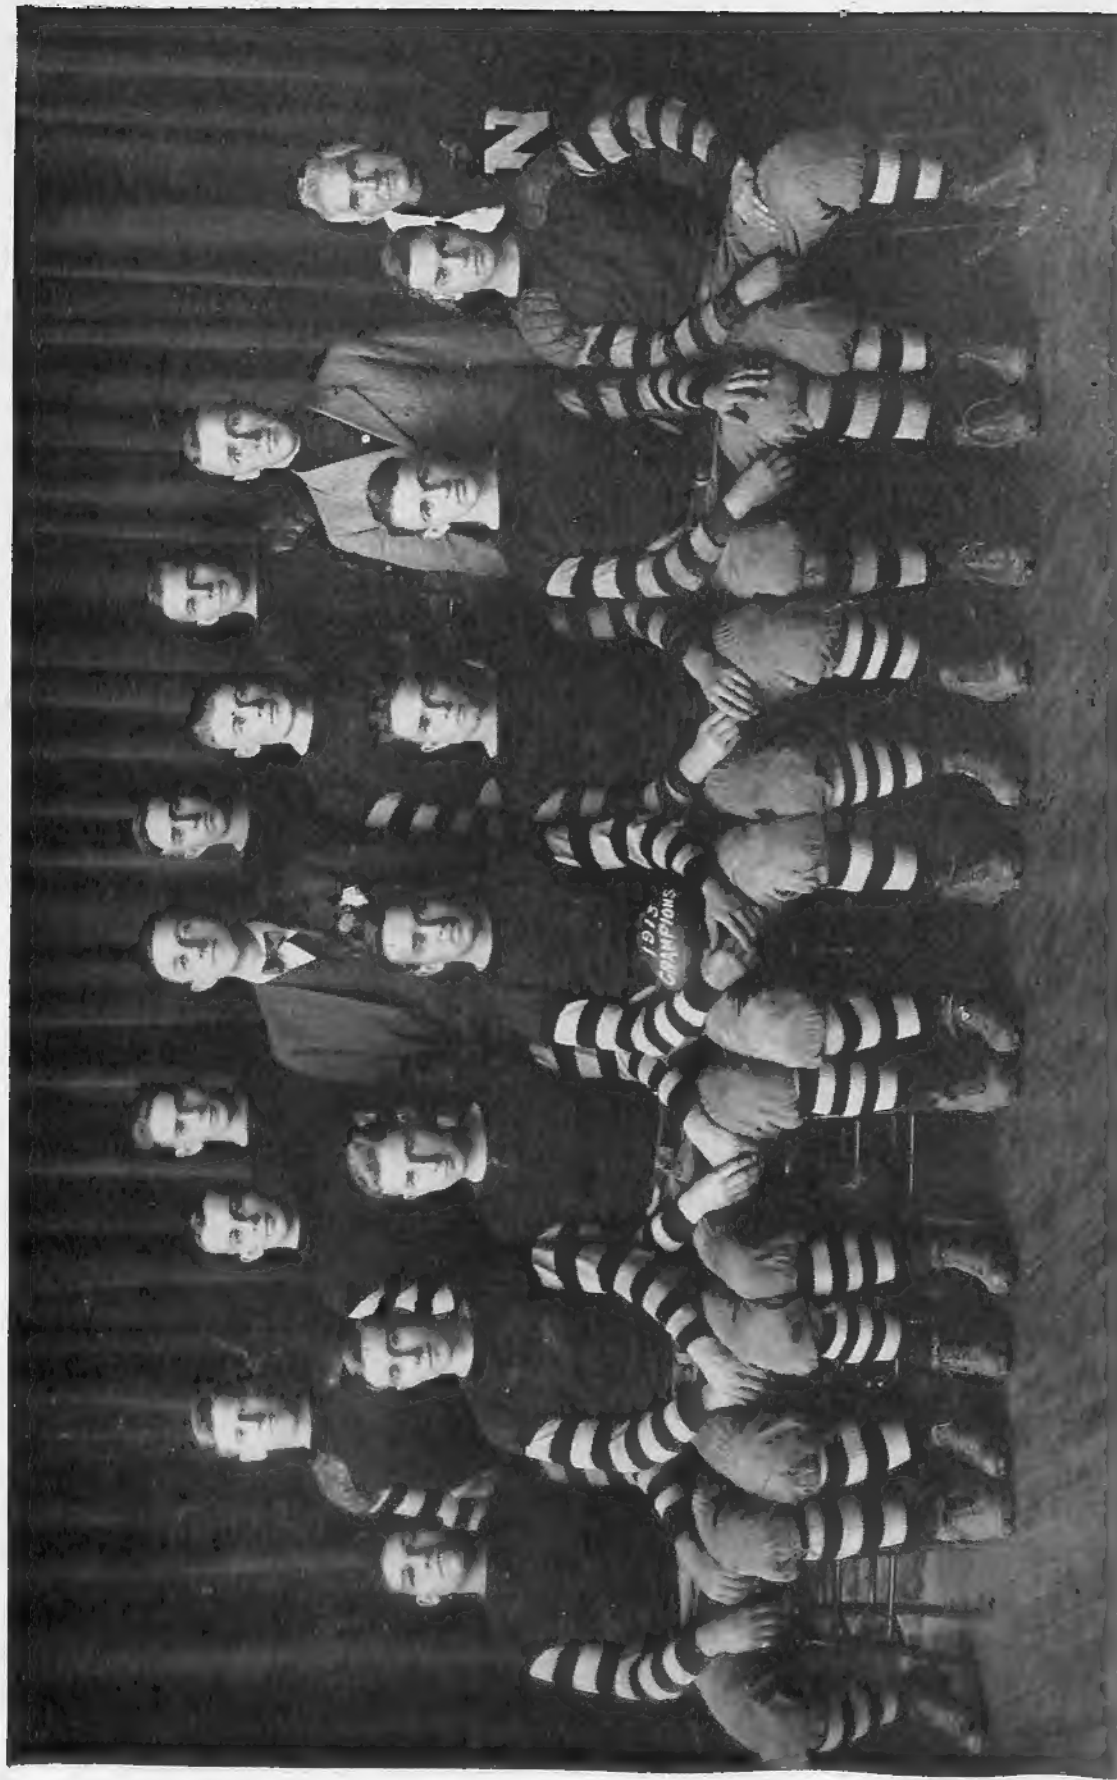

Best regards,

John K. Selleck

Acting Chancellor
